

Jiro Kawakami is Vice President of Global Development for MGM Resorts International and Chief of Staff for MGM Resorts Japan LLC. In this role, he is responsible for managing the Company's global development activities with a particular focus on the development of an Integrated Resort in Japan.

Mr. Kawakami most previously served MGM as Senior Analyst of Investor Relations, where he worked with senior management to develop financial communications strategy and liaised with the Company's institutional investors and Wall Street analysts covering MGM stock.

Prior to joining MGM in 2014, Mr. Kawakami worked with SHFL entertainment as an Analyst on the Company's Investor Relations team. In this role, he managed the quarterly earnings process, maintained the investor relations website, and performed valuations on potential acquisitions.

Mr. Kawakami earned his Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree from University of Southern California in 2012. During his time in business school, he was a Researcher for the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) where he managed a project that quantified inefficiencies in the APEC supply-chain and delivered recommendations to the member nations for time and cost savings.

His previous experience also includes roles as Depositary Receipts MBA Intern for The Bank of New York Mellon, as well as Senior Associate and Associate for Taylor Rafferty, a Financial Communications consultancy in New York City.

Mr. Kawakami received his Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics from Johns Hopkins University. He also earned the Chartered Financial Analyst® (CFA) credential in 2016, the most respected and recognized investment management designation in the world.